The sculpted wine-growers cellar (AOC Chinon)

The sculpted wine-growers cellar (AOC Chinon) at the heart of a 200 hectare vineyard which annually produces 8,000 hl of well-reputed Chinon. The Panzoult wine-growers have created in this shared cellar a unique, mysterious and entirely sculpted underground world which brings alive the spirit of Rabelais for those who visit.

Between the plains and small valleys, cornfields and vineyards, the vestiges of yesteryear along with civil and religious architecture, the diversity of Panzoult is what is so attractive about it. Panzoult is one of the 19 wine-making villages of the Chinon appellation which includes more than 200 wine-growers. François Rabelais' character the Sibylle, a prophet who comes to consult with Panurge about the advice of Pantagruel, lived in Panzoult, in the «Croulay» valley.

1 Wine producers cellar
This red way-marked 10-kilometre path starts from the «cave des vigneron» (wine producers cellar).

2 View over the valley
Pause to enjoy the view over the valley.

Then continue your path into underwood where you might cross paths with one of the many deer that roam the region. Turn right, then left following the path which passes close by the ruins of a former castle.

3 Woods
Approximately 500 metres further on, turn left onto a small tarmac road and walk past a winegrower's house. Continue straight ahead, and then turn right onto a grassy path. After the farmhouse enter the woods when you get to the picnic table.

4 Le Puits du Pin
Follow the path for around 800 metres as it descends gently towards «Le Puits du Pin». After passing the ruins of a house, leave the wood. You are walking alongside what were once open-air pools.

5 The « Folies » vineyard
Then turn right and walk up the tarmac road towards «Etilly». Turn left again at the hamlet of «Etilly» and admire the view over the valley of the Manse river. Arriving at the give way sign (cédez le passage), go straight ahead: you will pass close by the «Folies» vineyard . But, as Rabelais wrote, be careful not to enjoy the « dive bouteille » (divine bottle) too much!
Turn right before «Les Petites Roches». You will come to the D 221. Notice on your left, la Fuye de Roncé (a 17th century hexagonal dovecote with 2400 pigeon holes inside). Head to the right.

6 Roncé
At Roncé, read carefully the information board, to find out about the local climates and soils. Turn left as you leave the village and take the grassy footpath.

7 La Grange aux Moines
After walking among vines and pastures to the «Grange aux Moines», turn right; continue for 200 metres to reach the lake of Panzoult.

8 Panzoult
Go up «rue de la Vienne», pass the town hall and the former presbytery (one of its walls is decorated with a 17th century slate sundial). Go down «rue de l'église». This church, dedicated to Saint Vincent, was built in the 11th century then reworked between the 12th and the 16th centuries. Saint-Vincent, patron saint of wine-growers, is celebrated every year in Panzoult on the first Saturday of February. Go over the crossroads, go down «rue de la Forêt», then turn right and head towards la «cave des vigneron». This cellar is full of surprises and is well worth a visit.
